How do i find friends on spotify app

Photo by old El Paso so I tried to switch to Apple Music. I was sick of Spotify and a thousand problems a little, and I missed iTunes. (I actually missed Winamp, but that's not an option.) iTunes feels less like a spreadsheet. It handles the load of the device better. Works great with Siri and my Apple TV. Plus it contains all the music I actually own, including all the weird little synthesizers and SoundCloud downloads that Spotify can't give me. But he's alone on Apple Music. Sometimes I want to see what my friends are listening to and whenever someone shares an album or playlist on the web, it's definitely not connected to Apple Music. Plus I don't know how to make Apple alert me about new music from favorite artists. So every now and then I crack open Spotify. I hate voice ads, so I keep paying for Premium. I thought I hated manipulating two applications but so far, it's actually pretty nice! I can afford to waste ten dollars a month and I have a few options to move playlists back and forth, such as moving to Apple, S.t.A.M.P., SongShift. So now I'm looking for more ways to combine two competing mediocrities in one very good solution. For example: combining two competitors is always a little janky. But this feels - and this will sound pathetic - a little exciting not to be trapped in one ecosystem. We all do it sometimes, and we all sometimes. We run Gmail on our iPhone or run iTunes on Windows or repost our Tweets to Facebook. As much as all these companies love us, we should try to play against each other often. Because none of these companies can do everything right, Spotify is improving its free offerings and updating iOS and Android apps. Spotify (SPOT) is finally giving the mobile app a major facelift, as part of the push to improve its free service. The new app will be launched globally for the company's 157 million users in the coming weeks. The Swedish company runs the world's largest paid music streaming service, followed by Apple Music. And if they want to stick to this lead, you'll have to direct more users to their premium display. As the company explained during its press event announcing improvements in its free service, the more people listen, the more they spend. To do this Spotify is introducing an improved user experience that must entice more free users to spend US$9.99 per month on the premium version of the app. The biggest improvements to Spotify's free offer include 15 new on-demand playlists every day from RapCaviar and Ultimate Indie to Daily Mix and Discover Weekly. Each playlist will be built, of course, around the personal tastes of users. You'll also be able to listen to these playlists in any order you want and skip as many songs as you want. However, you won't be able to do this with playlists that you take care of yourself. You'll still be limited to skipping 6 songs per hour, you won't be able to replay songs and you won't be able to save songs to listen offline. That's all still reserved. Customer. Improved discovery says that new users will no longer have to wait until the company's algorithms learn their tastes before they can begin to make accurate recommendations. That's because when you sign up for Spotify, you'll now be able to get to know your favorite artists. When you choose an artist from the submitted list, for example, Kendrick Lamar, the app will give you additional recommendations. When I chose Virgin Iron, for example, the app gave me a larger list of metal bands. This feature is similar to the apple music apparition (AAPL), although Spotify seems to offer a larger list of artists and teams to choose from from Apple Music. Spotify is also adding the option to provide new data to users who the company says contain music you might like on your device, so you can still listen to your favorite band or music without using too much mobile data. However, Spotify won't explain how much music it will store on your phone or tablet, which may be a problem - especially if you've run out of storage space on your device and every few. Improving its free service will give Spotify more ammunition in its fight against Apple Music and Google (GOOG, GOOGL) YouTube, which will soon begin to try to attract users to its premium service by adding more ads during free hearings and identifying the benefits of its premium offerings such as offline listening. A brand new look while improvements to Spotify's free offer are good news for most users, I'm more excited by the fact that the company has finally decided to give Android and iOS apps a much needed facelift. I use Spotify on a daily basis, though, I still have trouble navigating their lists. The simple fact that the settings page hidden in the library tab has tripped my mind since the first day I downloaded the app. Now the settings will be accessed from the app's home tab, where it should always be. What's more, the company removes the radio tabs and browsing and transfers them all to the search tab. It makes for a much cleaner experience and should prove less confusing to users. It will be interesting to see if this new version of Spotify gives the company a greater advantage over the competition when it is launched in the coming weeks. As the stock market looks forward to 2021, Christmas is finally here. Some exchanges are closed today. These watches take a deep breath, prepare, and the New Year is just around the corner, and while we are all To celebrate — just in principle, because coming out of 2020 is reason enough for joy — let's also assess where we are and where we are headed. There is a growing sense of optimism, resulting from the availability of COVID vaccines and the potential to return to normal on major streets across the country. Finally, there is a chance that closure and social remoteness systems will truly end, in the near term. There is a real chance that by the end of 2021, John Q may be back on his feet. The return of normal life to the grass roots would be great, but we also have the potential for a rising market in general. Jp Morgan's chief U.S. equity strategist Dubravko Lakos-Bojas has been facing one of the best backgrounds in years, wrote JP Morgan's Chief Equity Strategist Dubravko Lakos-Bojas. The risks of global trade tensions, political uncertainty and the epidemic will disappear. At the same time, liquidity conditions remain very supportive, and there is a very favourable environment for interest rates. This is a Goldlocks environment for dangerous assets. Lakos Bojas is not ashamed to measure his optimism. He expects gains of up to 19% for the S&P 500, saying the index will reach 4,000 in early 2021 and reach 4,400 in the later part of the year. Turning The Outlook for Lakos Pugas into concrete recommendations, JPM staff of stock analysts are pounding the table on three stocks that look particularly compelling. We've run the trio through the TipRanks database to see what other Wall Street analysts are saying about it. Sutura Health (SHC)Sutura Health occupies a unique position in the healthcare industry and, through its subsidiaries, offers a range of safety-oriented support actions for healthcare providers. These services include sterilization procedures, laboratory testing and advisory services — and their importance is immediately apparent. Soutera boasts more than 5,800 healthcare providers in more than 50 countries around the world. While the company is not new — two of its branches have been in business since the 1930s and 40s — Sutura is new to the stock markets, having held an IPO only last November. The initial offering was considered a success, raising $1.2 billion on the sale of 53.6 million shares. Earlier this month, Soutera announced that it had used much of the IPO capital to pay off $1.1 billion in current debt. This included $341 million in a loan for the first concession, plus $770 million in total on the issue of higher secured banknotes. The move allowed Soutera to increase its renewable credit facilities to $347.5 million. This facility is currently unenchanted. Among the bulls is JPM analyst Tyko Peterson who rates SHC weight gain (no buy) along with a one-year price target of $35. This figure indicates a 31% increase over current levels. (To watch Track record, click here) SHC is uniquely positioned to take advantage of healthy growth at the end of the market and favorable pricing dynamics, Peterson noted. Due to the diversified operating platform, sticky multi-year contracts, efficient pricing strategy, significant barriers to entry and high regulatory control, we project ~9% sales growth, with increased use of continuous expansion push [and] strong FCF supports ongoing de-utilization, leaving us positive on both short- and long-term expectations. Wall Street Corps analysts are strongly behind Peterson on this one - in fact, 7 recent reviews are unanimously buys, making the analyst's consensus buy strong. The SHC is currently trading at US$26.75, and its average target price of $32.50 indicates a 21.5% increase by the end of 2021. (See SHC stock analysis on TipRank) Myovant Science (MYOV)Let's stick with the healthcare industry and look at Myovant Science. This biopharma clinical research company focuses on the main issues of reproductive disease in both men and women. Specifically, Myovant develops treatments for uterine fibroids, endometriosis, and prostate cancer. Myovant pipeline currently features Relugolix as a treatment for fibroids and endometriosis. The drug is in the 3rd stage trial of the latter, and the RND was provided to the former. Also in the pipeline, with regard to reproductive health, is MVT-602, a new drug aimed at promoting egg maturation and assisting in vitro fertilization. In addition, Myovant announced this month that Relugolix has been approved by the FDA — under the brand name Orgovyx — as a treatment for advanced prostate cancer. The drug is the first, and currently only, oral Gonadotropin-releasing hormone (GnRH) receptor antagonist for the disease. Orgovyx is expected to enter the market in January 2021.Analyst Eric Joseph, in his note on this stock for JPM, describes how he impressed Relugolix based on the clinical and commercial potential of remodeling lead assets for the treatment of endometrial and uterine fibroids, as well as in men for the treatment of advanced prostate cancer. The analyst added: In Women's Health, we believe that the total phase 3 data so far de risk of relugolix approval in the United States for uterine fibroids and endometriosis - business opportunities that are too low at current levels. Furthermore, we see an attractive commercial preparation for relugolix in the treatment of advanced prostate cancer as an oral IHRH alternative with a differentiated CV risk profile. These comments support Joseph's weight gain (no purchase) rating on MYOV, and his $30 price target means 31% upside for the next 12 months. (To watch Joseph's record, click here) Overall, the strong consensus rating in The Buy Analyst on Myovant comes from 5 reviews, and obviously the collapse of the bulls: 4 to 1 in favor of buying versus a contract. The share price is $22.80 and the average target price is $36.40, giving a strong bullish potential of approximately 59%. (See MYOV Stock On TipRanks(Metropolitan Bank Holdings) (MCB) for the third share, we will change the corridors from healthcare to finance, where Metropolitan Bank Holding - through its branch, Metropolitan Commercial Bank - acts as a full-service bank for business, entrepreneurship and personal customers in the mid-market sector. The Bank's services include commercial lending, cash management, deposits, electronic banking, personal audit and prepaid cards. In a difficult year for most of us, MCB has been able to spread increased revenues and strong profits. The bank's first line rose from $33 million in the first quarter to $36 million in the third quarter. EPS was stronger, at $1.27 per share, up 30% year-on-year. The gains come as the Bank provides forward guidance of $153.9 million in total revenue for next year, which, if realized, will reflect a 22% gain in 2020. While MCB's financial performance showed steady gains, the rise in the value of the shares did not follow suit. The stock partially recovered its losses last winter at the height of the halo crisis, and is currently down 26% this year. Watching jpm's New York banking landscape, analyst Steven Alexopoulos points to the general difficulties in the commercial mortgage sector — an important part of the U.S. investment bank's portfolio — due to ongoing pandemic issues. In this environment, he sees the Metropolitan Bank as the right choice. We are not as stoic as most prospects for real estate in New York. Having experienced many courses in New York City, it was time to buy when the herd worked the other way. In previous cycles, MCB has outperformed credit metrics in relation to its loan portfolio compared to our coverage range. Alexopoulos goes on to explain another key strength in MCB's loan portfolio: In a low interest rate environment, MCB bank is in a better position than its peers to withstand the headwinds for NIM with 59% of MCB loans at a fixed rate and 67% of remaining floating interest rate loans have floors to protect against short-term low interest rates... To this end, Alexopoulos rates MCB weight gain (no buy) along with a $50 price target. If the target is achieved, investors may be able to make gains of 43% over the next year. (To see Alexopoulos' record, click here) some arrows fly under the radar, and THE MCB is one of those. Alexopoulos is the only recent analyst review for this company, and it is certainly positive. Business investor DailyAlibaba Equity is a long-term IBD leader with outstanding fundamentals, but does that make China war buy now? This article is going to explain what Penny's stock is and discuss four penny stocks under $1 to watch small-cap stocks continue the hot streak this winter. The first thing is first, what are penny shares? In short, these are the shares of companies that trade for less than $5. Penny's stock is known for its volatility aside from just its cheap price. But whether you're looking at stocks under $1 or those closer to $5, it's important to keep some things in mind. First, understand what you buy and why you buy it. Just saying that you are trading penny shares is not the goal you are in the market to make money. Therefore, it is clear that setting entry and exit targets is important. What's more, it is you have to have a basic strategy in mind. Are you looking at a penny stock trading day or do you have a long-term idea in mind? Also, it is important to take into account price fluctuations and how quickly they occur. Small maximum shares continue the hot line why would anyone want to buy a penny stock now? For example, stocks with small capital are red hot right now. Check the ETF standard and Russell 2000 (IWM). While the S&P, the Dow, and even the Nasdaq are struggling to maintain their bullish trend, IWM just hit all-new record highs on Wednesday. Given the strength of small-capital stocks - especially stocks below $1 - it's wise to have at least some popular names on your watch list. When finding a penny stock to buy, be sure to evaluate each trade independently and plan accordingly. Most of them will not plan to invest in penny stocks that go up and down by 50% in seconds. Moreover, today's traders will not usually jump into stocks that are hardly volatile in price. As a rule, the lower the price, the higher the volatility. This is simply for the fact that a small step in the price is equivalent to changing the largest percentage. With this in mind are which of these penny stocks under $1 on your watch list now? Tonics Pharmaceutical stake tonix Pharmaceutical S.A. (NASDAQ: TNXP) is another one of the penny stocks under $1 earning steam before the end of the year. This week the company came out with news that it had finished buying nearly 44 acres in Montana. This site will be for the vaccine development and manufacturing facility site. This adds to the company's growing footprint as well. A few months ago, Tonix also bought a 40,000-square-foot facility in Massachusetts. These facilities will support the development and production of candidates for vaccines for the company. If you are new to the TNXP arrow story, the company is currently developing txn-1800 as a potential COVID-19 vaccine as well as TNX-801 for smallpox/monkey pox vaccine. Specifically, the TNX-1800 was as focused as you can imagine. Many of the stocks of the coronavirus vaccine have gained the benefit of a few of the past in this case, Tonix aims to report efficacy data from animal challenge studies to the vaccine filter in the next quarter. Biolase Biolase Inc (NASDAQ: BIOL) is another of the lower-priced penny stocks that make moves at the end of the year. This week alone, a penny rose from about $0.27 to more than $0.31. While this is just a $0.04 move, it equates to nearly 15% jump in price since Monday. Unlike other biotechnology focuses mainly on products used in oral health. The company's main products are dental laser systems that perform a wide range of procedures, including complex cosmetic and surgical applications. Last month, the company launched the Waterlase Endo Academy to promote education and best practices to integrate Waterlase technology into clinical environments. Todd Norby, President and CEO of Biolase Jaguar Health Inc. (NASDAQ: JAGX) said this week: As Indoent specialists continue to look for more advanced solutions to difficult situations, the Academy will serve as a resource for some of the industry's greatest minds to raise the level of dissemination of best practices for integrating advanced technology such as Waterlase. Wednesday saw an additional penny extends gains in December and reached a high of more than $0.90. While we have reported the company for weeks, the biggest step this week comes after Jaguar's latest update. The company signed an agreement to finance undiluted royalties. Jaguar will sell future royalty royalty interest from Mytesis® (crofelemer) and Lechmer for a total purchase price of $6 million. Lisa Conti, Jaguar's president and CEO, said the timing of the deal is well in line with the progress made in the recently launched THIRD-stage phase trial for CTD, in which patient registration is progressing. Also keep in mind that the company has held preliminary discussions with the Swiss Growth Forum, a sponsor of a european private-purpose acquisition company, equity in post-pandemic recovery. A potential deal with SPAC and an operational branch of Jaguar will be established in Europe with an exclusive license for Kofelymer and Mighty to refer to inflammatory and HIV-related diarrhea. Senseonics Holdings Inc. (NYSE: SENS) began to rise this week after a major U.S. patent victory. Senseonics has been granted a patent titled remote sensing system with multiple sensors. Given that the company is a medical devicecompany, patent wins come in handy too. Glucose monitoring systems for Senseonics transplant are used by diabetics. CGM, Eversense® And Eversense® XL systems include a small subcutaneous sensor. This communicates with the smart transmitter worn on the sensor. The data is then sent every five minutes to the mobile application on the user's smartphone. In addition to the reasons to watch Senseonics, earlier this year i entered the company in collaboration with Ascensia Diabetes Care, Diabetes Care Company. Heading into the beginning of 2021, there are a few things that traders follow. One of these is to start businesses outside the United States with the help of Asencia. The company also expects a decision on the approval of its Eversense product by the FDA in the first half of the year. So, if you've been going through with the idea of giving up home ownership, then, by all means, you go for it. However, given that home ownership is the hallmark of wealth, abandoning it is set to bring you a lot of controversy. You may even criticize individuals in your circle. But no matter what the largest population thinks, here are never good reasons to buy a house. The cost of home ownership is lifetime advocates of home ownership often argue that paying rent is expensive, but home ownership is at the same cost. Home ownership costs do not end with this initial payment. It comes with lifetime costs, which, compared to renting, will create dent in your money and take away your peace of mind. For example, utility bills such as electricity and water cannot be avoided and must be paid every month. According to Zillow, these bills alone cost homeowners between $2,300 and $4,600 a year. Add in recurring costs such as insulation, heating, cooling maintenance costs, homeowners insurance, property taxes, HOA fees, mortgage payments, and yard maintenance, chances are you end up spending more annually than a tenant residing in a house similar to you. What's more, there is no option to withdraw. Once you buy a house, you commit to these costs unless you decide to sell it. On the other hand, when renting or renting a house, you can always unsubscribe. For example, when times become difficult, you can always switch to income-based apartments until you get back on your feet. house is not a pro home investment house individuals will try to convince you that your home is Although there is some truth in this, buying a house as your main residence is not the same as buying one for rent or resale. Didn't? Well, when you buy a home for real estate, it brings you a return on investment. For example, when you buy, rent or rent an apartment, it provides you with returns on investment at least every month or every six months based on the terms of your agreement with your tenant. But when you buy a house to live in, you will have invested, but you will not get any returns. If anything, one will be putting money in it through maintenance, mortgage payments, and all other costs mentioned earlier. In addition, the house cannot be an investment if you do not plan to sell it at any time. What makes an investment is your ownership control. In other words, real estate investment is referred to as such because you can buy it when its value is low and sell it when the value is high, making profits. But your basic housing is different because you can't just wake up one morning and decide to sell it unless you're hard to get cash, which in most cases means you'll take any offer that leads to losses. Also, when you sign a home purchase agreement, your money is automatically secured, and the only way you can get it back is by selling it or taking a home stock loan. When you rent or rent, you release your money, and you can use it to invest in opportunities that grow your wealth. Sure, you can say that rent is expensive, but that's not a good enough reason to buy a home because there are so many modern, well-equipped and low-income apartments that will help you keep costs down. Housing values are not always high and it is true that the house increases in value over time. Due to inflation, a house bought for $100,000 is now worth more than $600,000. This means selling it will bring you good profits. However, keep in mind that the real estate market is incredibly volatile. The value of your home may be high now, then it may fall sharply due to the collapse of the real estate market and/or other external factors. For example, during the great financial recession of 2007-2009, real estate market values declined sharply, resulting in huge losses to sellers. Current listing values decreased from $7.1 million to $4.1 million, representing a 25% decrease in the value of homes sold during the period. What does that have to do with buying a house? Well, you may buy a house you expect to increase in value, but instead, you find that its value is incredibly low when you desperately need to sell it. You end up selling it at a loss keeping in mind that some factors are beyond your control. For example, the real estate market may not collapse, but because of other components such as increased crime, the value of homes in the neighborhood where you bought your home declines. Such an occurrence would almost make it, if not, impossible to find a buyer who is willing to get it out of your hands, even in Price. In other words, unless you have a magic crystal ball, there is no telling what will happen next with the year, or your local real estate market. So if you buy a house now with hopes that its value will increase in the future, then you are better off not buying one because you are likely to be widely disappointed. Owning home relationships you are down unless you are rich and can afford to buy a house in different parts of the country, and houses ropes you to one location. If you get a great job or an entrepreneurial opportunity, you can't just pack and go. First, you have to put your home on the market and find a realtor to help you sell it. You also have to worry about market values, and since you are in a hurry to move to your next site, chances are you will sell it to the first buyer because you don't have time to wait for better offers. But when you rent, all you have to do is pack and go. Even if you don't move, buying a house automatically means you'll have to deal with the community around you for the rest of your life, especially if you don't plan to sell it. For example, even if you don't like your neighbors, you'll have no choice but to learn to subtraction with them. When you rent and don't like your neighbors, the option to walk is always viable. Home ownership is not for everyoneonot everyone is cut for home ownership. It comes with responsibilities that some people just don't have the skin to deal with. For example, when buying a house, especially in the HOA community, you need to ensure good yard maintenance, cleaning gutters, repainting your exterior regularly, and other similar tasks. Not everyone is cutting for this level of responsibility, and if this describes you, then never buy a house. Home ownership youOwning doesn't know that a modern apartment is great, but you can still enjoy living in it without having to deal with the pressures of ownership simply by renting. Home ownership does not in any way determine your success. So, if you don't want a house, don't buy it because your peers own multiple houses. As a result, home ownership leaves little to be desired. Insiders are a lot interesting. From an investor's point of view, corporate employees have access to information — information has always been the key to successful investment. Company executives, exec VPs, and board members — these are insider positions, and officers are in a position to know what is happening, or is likely to happen, to a company and its shares. And yes, they trade in their company's shares, they are familiar with the internal business of their companies, and this knowledge puts them in a much better position than the general public to make buying decisions on the shares of their own companies. In order to maintain the level of play in the market, federal regulators are asking informed corporate officials to publicly disclose their trading in the companies they manage. In short, yet corporate insiders are a viable path towards profitable stock movements. To make this search easier, tipRanks Insiders' hot stock tool will start working - identifying stocks that have seen media moves by insiders, highlighting the many common strategies used by insiders, and collecting data all in one place. Fresh from that database, here are the details of three strong buy stocks during 'informative buy' in recent days. Vistra Energy (VST) is the first insider selection here, Vistra Energy, a Texas-based utilities company. Vestra offers a full range of electricity services, including electric power Transmission, distribution. The company is, of course, a core industry, giving it an advantage during the ongoing halo crisis, and Vestra's revenue swelled rapidly from a modest decline in the second quarter. This recovery has been significant. Third-quarter revenue was $3.55 billion, up 40% from the second quarter and 11% from the previous quarter. The company's earnings were also strong, at 90 cents per share, and were the best in more than two years. Two of Vestra's officers recently made an insider's stock purchase - president and chief financial officer, James Burke, and board member Scott Helm. Burke bought 17,000 shares for more than $310,000, and Helm paid more than $356,000 for two blocks of 10,000 shares each. Among the supporters is BMO analyst James Thalacker, who classifies VST for excellence (i.e. purchase) along with a price target of $29. This figure indicates that 57% of the ascent to one year. (To see Thalacker's track record, click here) Talaker takes note of the company's strong third-quarter performance and potential for a strong end to the year, noting: We are boosting strong generation performance to a more favorable hedging environment last summer when the company entered the hedging process for 2020. In addition, with a very mild summer in ERCOT we suspect VST has had the opportunity to improve its generating portfolio by running below its own units the highest power temperature and buying power in the spot market. We are maintaining our estimate of $3.590 billion (already in the top half) and we are waiting to see how energy conditions develop over the next few weeks. Overall, Vistra Energy holds a strong buying rating from consensus analysts, based on 6 recent reviews breaking 5 to 1 buy-for-hold. The share price is $18.47 and the $29 average target price will make the bullish trend — 57%, matching the thalcker for the coming year. (See VST Stock Analysis on TipRanks) Network Dynamics Holdings (GDYN), the next Network Dynamics, is a high-tech company that offers digital transformation services. Network services include solving old redesign problems, technology engineering and cloud transition. The company has a global customer base and is headquartered in Silicon Valley.The public good network on nasdaq in March this year, through a merger with a private-purpose acquisition company, Chaser Acquisition Technology. When the deal closed, Grid boasted a market cap of $660 million. The stock fell sharply in the early days of trading, coinciding with covid's impact on the economy and stock markets at the time. Since then, GDYN shares have risen, and shares have risen more than 120% from their march lows. However, the impact of the anomaly on the network can still be felt. While revenue in the third quarter increased by 18% in a row compared to the second quarter, the reported $26.33 million is still lower than the first quarter. The company recorded strong revenue growth in its non-commercial industrial and technological sectors. The salient step from the inside here comes from Victoria Livshitz, evp of customer success, who 126,000 shares last week. It pounded out $1.48 million for a block of shares, and now has a holding in GDYN worth $10.65 million. Joseph Favay of Canaccord was impressed by the network's forward prospects. The five-star analyst noted that the network's customer group will be stronger and more robust than before the pre-pandemic, supported by strong spending on digital transformation by healthy and growing customers at TMT and CPG. Retail, de-risked, retains attractive option value, but the grid will not be weighed down by physical revenue exposure in a fairly muddled and defensive vertical. To this end, Vafi Rates GDYN purchase along with the price target of $15. At current levels, its target is a 12-month average of 21%. (To see the Vaffi log, click here) The survey says... Wall Street agrees. A total of four out of four reviews published in the last few weeks says GDYN is a strong buy. However, the average target share price of $12.75 indicates a modest 3% rise and a change from the current share price. (See GDYN Stock Analysis on TipRaxk) Arvinas Holding Company (ARVN) of hi-tech we turn to biotechnology, where Arvinas is an innovator in biopharmaceuticals. The company is working on protein degradation treatments, a new class of drugs that target disease-related proteins and use the body's natural protein disposal systems to break down and remove the formed proteins. As with most biopharmaceutical companies based on research, Arvinas relates everything to pipelines. The pipeline here is an early but powerful stage, featuring at least 13 programs in the fields of oncology, immunology, and neuroscience. Drug candidates under developments are at different stages of early research, ranging from exploratory clinical trials to Phase 1. In recent days, RV Fin's shares have more than doubled, more than doubling its share price. The jump came after the company released clinical data showing the potential effectiveness of two pipeline drugs; ARV-471 for patients with locally advanced or metastatic breast cancer ER+/HER2- and ARV-110 for the treatment of men with castile-resistant metastatic prostate cancer. Also in recent days, Arvinas announced pricing on the new common stock version. The company put 5.714 million shares on the market at $70 per share, in a move to raise $400 million in new capital. This leads us to insider trading. Board member Liam Ratcliffe spent $9.99 million on 142,857 shares during the new common stock offering. His total contract at ARVN is now $58.46 million. In a note from Roth Capital, 5-star analyst Zigbeh Gala wrote: We love the management outlines of the next important steps, which we believe highlight how Arvinas plans to develop [ARV-110 and ARV-471] to drive value, build an early stage pipeline... The company's strong pre-clinical pipeline is a nice addition to its powerful leading clinical candidates. Joule gives the stock a buy rating, and its price target of $120 means a strong one-year rise of 50%. (To Log Jallah, click here) It is not often that analysts agree on stocks, so when that happens, take note. ARVN's rating in strong consensus purchase is based on 9 unanimous buys. The average target share price of $102.44 indicates that it has a 28% growth before next year. The shares are currently trading at $79.74. Technology shares along with banks, space and retail, and many other sectors have all their day in the sun, and now is the time for investors to pay closer attention to the dream market of alternative fuel companies, according to Jim Cramer Hydrogen.Power: At the top of the list are potential future energy giants such as Plug Energy Corporation (NASDAQ: PLUG), Kramer said Tuesday on Crazy Money. The hydrogen fuel cell company has seen its shares rise by more than 1000% in 2020. Fellow hydrogen cell company Bloom Energy Corp. (NYSE: BE) is 300% while Ballard Power Systems Inc. (NASDAQ: BLDP) is 200%. EV Play: Self-driving electric cars would not be possible without companies that manufacture the technology that runs cars. Luminar Technologies Inc (NASDAQ: LAZR) is a laser-based sensor manufacturer competing against Velodyne Lidar Inc (NASDAQ: VLDR). EV cars will need access to charging stations. At the forefront of that market is Blink Shipping (NASDAQ: BLNK) and its shares rose from a 52-week low of $1.25 to a high of $48.70 in 2020.But ultimately cramer is the top pick, QuantumCorp (NYSE: QS), a lighter battery maker and fastest charging for EVs.related: Watch out, Elon Masco. These EV startups are trying to take on Teslaair Earth Minerals: Rare Earth Metal Company MP Materials Corp. (NYSE: MP) is a US-based company with a hammer lock on magnets for electric motors, Kramer said. Why interest: These alternative energy companies boast experience in unique technologies that were very expensive but are now much cheaper to produce, Kramer said. Kramer said the group is also benefiting from a potential stimulus from joe biden's administration, which will be more supportive of alternative energy.
